

Limitations of our History Textbook

Students explore historical perspectives that may not be included in the class textbook.

Created by: David Hunter
Subject: Social Studies
Standard: D2.His.10.6-8

Have A Discussion

Hook

What is the question or prompt students will discuss to get hooked?
How does history affect your life and why is it important to try and understand history?

Watch A Video Or Demonstration

Inform

Title of what students will watch:
Howard Zinn on the Limitations of American History Books

Directions for students
Watch the video and consider what we might be missing from our history textbook.

Key information students should take away (optional)
There are point of views missing in traditional history textbooks.

Activity Resource(s)

<http://youtu.be/NGGQS5aGbQI>
<http://youtu.be/NGGQS5aGbQI>

Share

Practice

What will students share?
One piece of key information or point of view that they think is missing from our history textbook.

Directions for students
Get into groups. Share ideas about what perspectives you think could be missing from our history textbook. Be ready to share your ideas with the class.
Be ready to choose one of the ideas to research and compare to our history textbook.

What do you anticipate students will think during this practice? (optional)
Students might be struggling to think of "facts" that were left out.

How can you respond to encourage student learning? (optional)
Encourage students to think of "perspectives" or points-of-view that might be overlooked in our textbook.

Answer A Question

Apply

What question(s) will students answer?
What are the possible limitations of our history textbook as a historical resource?
Provide evidence from other texts or resources that shows the possible limitations of our history textbook.

